Chris Stone - Artist and Designer

About the Artist

Chris Stone (b. 1950) is one of Australia's most influential textile designers, known for his bold, expressive surface designs across bed linen and homewares. After relocating from Milan to Melbourne in 1984 to join Sheridan as Design Director, Chris played a pivotal role in expanding the brand from a domestic favourite to an international name featured in over 50 countries. Based in Sydney since 1987, he pioneered colour forecasting reports that shaped furnishing trends across the industry. Alongside his commercial success, Chris has spent over 40 years mentoring textile students, generously sharing his expertise with the next generation of designers.

When local demand for hand-painted work declined, Chris returned to painting — creating vibrant Australian scenes filled with flowers, birds and native landscapes. Now part of the Australian Museum of Design collection, his works reflect a deep connection to place and a lifelong dedication to creative practice.

About the Australian Museum of Design

The Australian Museum of Design (AMoD) is a cultural initiative founded to preserve, honour and revitalise Australia's design legacy, and to share it with the world. At its heart is a growing archive of more than 10,500 hand-drawn surface designs created by Australian artists across the 20th century, many of which have never been seen publicly until now.

AMoD exists to make this rich history accessible for study and for everyday use. From wallpaper and textiles to digital licensing and design exhibitions, we bring historical designs into modern homes, commercial interiors and creative projects. Each work is carefully digitised and restored, ensuring the artist's original intent and craft are respected while enabling new forms of expression and appreciation.

Our purpose goes beyond preservation. We are building a bridge between generations, where the imagination, skill and stories of Australian artists are no longer confined to archives, but reintroduced as part of a living, design-led conversation. Through collaborations, education and commercial partnerships, AMoD supports both the cultural and economic value of Australian design, championing creators past and present. Whether it's through curated wallpaper collections, designer features, or licensing support for brands and makers, AMoD is helping to define a new chapter in the story of Australian visual identity that honours the past while creating opportunities for the future.

‘Rosevale’

Wallpaper by Australian Museum of Design

Rosevale is a joyful and loosely scattered floral wallpaper by Chris Stone, celebrating the softness and spontaneity of garden blooms in full colour. The design features hand-painted posies and sprays of pansies, lupins, hollyhocks, and daisies, lightly drifting across an open, cream-toned background that allows each bloom to breathe. Motifs include delicate petals, rounded leaf shapes, and soft garden silhouettes, all rendered in layered watercolour tones with a painterly, natural touch. The palette blends warm corals, soft lavenders, rich greens, and blush pinks, creating a light yet expressive floral arrangement that feels both fresh and nostalgic.

Originally painted in the late 20th century, Rosevale captures Chris Stone’s ability to compose without confinement — a free-form balance of shape, colour, and air. The design feels effortless and luminous, inviting the viewer into a loose bouquet that dances gently across the wall.

Now reissued by the Australian Museum of Design, Petal Drift brings lightness and floral beauty to bedrooms, bathrooms, hallways, or creative interiors — ideal for those drawn to romantic colour, garden whimsy, and timeless design.
