About this design

A lively arrangement of wildflowers including snapdragons, petunias, gerberas and morning glories. Painted with delicate watercolour layering, the blooms appear gently pressed against a warm cream ground.

Painted by Chris Stone in the late 20th century and reissued by the Australian Museum of Design.

About Chris Stone

Chris Stone (b. 1950) is one of Australia's most influential textile designers, known for his bold, expressive surface designs across bed linen and homewares. After relocating from Milan to Melbourne in 1984 to join Sheridan as Design Director, Chris played a pivotal role in expanding the brand from a domestic favourite to an international name featured in over 50 countries.

Based in Sydney since 1987, he pioneered colour forecasting reports that shaped furnishing trends across the industry. Alongside his commercial success, Chris has spent over 40 years mentoring textile students.

Now part of the Australian Museum of Design collection, his hand-painted works reflect a deep connection to place and a lifelong dedication to creative practice.

About the Australian Museum of Design

The Australian Museum of Design preserves Australia's design legacy and shares it with the world. Its growing archive holds more than 10,500 hand-drawn surface designs by Australian artists of the 20th century, many of them never seen publicly until now. Each work is carefully digitised and restored so the artist's original intent remains intact.
